Master Module 2012 “Gender Medicine”

is integrated as an elective module within the masters programs „Master of Public Health (MPH)“ and „Health and Society: Gender and Diversity Studies (MScPH)“ at the Charité Berlin School of Public Health. It is organized by the Institute of Gender in Medicine (GIM) at Charité Berlin and supported by the German Society of Gender Medicine (DGesGM e.V.).

Participants will learn to grasp the fundamental principles and scientific standards of gender medicine in selected medical disciplines. They will learn to understand the importance of taking gender aspects into consideration in public health-relevant diseases and medical research and will familiarize themselves with instruments of gender and sex differences in diagnosis and therapy.

Teaching in master module “Gender Medicine” addresses professionals and students Physicians, public health practitioners, pharmacologists, Master-, MD- and PhD students and interested people working in other healthcare institutions are invited to apply.

300 €, for DGesGM and IGM members 225 €, for Charité students 50 €
